

Death at the Movies: A Dan Marin Mystery (Dan Marin Mysteries Book 5)

While working on his live-aboard boat Copia, private investigator Dan Marin is approached by a woman claiming to just be out for a walk. Marin is immediately wary; a lone woman walking along the rough industrial docks where Copia is moored is very out of place. His suspicions are justified when later she admits she needs his help. She says she is part of a group making movies and a young actress has gone missing. She fears foul play and mentions the possibility of murder. When Marin hears murder and learns the woman went missing during the filming of a pornographic movie, he declines the offer saying it is a police matter. But the woman is insistent he help her. After Marin learns more about the porn industry and how young women are exploited, he relents. They set out to find the missing woman.
