

Life is just one day

Cancer is a horrible thing. It brings feelings of fear, despair and helplessness. Yet through these negative feelings, it is still possible to be creative and optimistic. People are amazing. Doctors told Suzanne Crossley that she had just 12 months to live. Su decided to express the emotions she was enduring through poetry. This is the book of that poetry. In the end, Suzanne lived much, much longer than the doctors predictions, but sadly she eventually lost her battle against the disease. It was her hope that her poetry would help someone who was also facing difficult times. Profits from this book will be given to the rare diseases centre at the Queen Elizabeth hospital, Birmingham, UK.
